Ragging consists of one or more of the following acts:

An Anti-Ragging Committee is typically established by educational institutions to prevent and address incidents of ragging within the campus. The committee plays a crucial role in creating a safe and conducive learning environment for students. The duties of an Anti-Ragging Committee often include:

- Refers to a form of initiation ritual or social interaction that occurs in educational institutions, especially in colleges and universities.
- Considered to be a negative practice and is prohibited in many educational institutions due to its potential for harm and harassment.
- Allowing seniors to engage in casual conversations with juniors, sharing experiences, and offering guidance in a friendly manner.
- Emphasizing to the students about ragging which can sometimes escalate to more serious and harmful activities, including physical, emotional, or psychological abuse.
- Prohibiting any form of ragging to ensure the well-being and safety of students.
- Addressing the appropriate authorities to ensure a safe and healthy learning environment.
- Serves as a point of contact for students who wish to report incidents of ragging.
- Establishing confidential mechanisms for reporting, ensuring that complainants feel safe and protected.
- Providing support and counseling to victims of ragging, helping them cope with the emotional and psychological effects of the incident.
- Monitors the campus environment regularly to identify any potential instances of ragging and assess preventive measures' effectiveness.

The Institution shall punish a student even found guilty of ragging herein under:

Upon receiving a complaint, the committee is responsible for conducting a prompt and impartial investigation into the alleged incident which may involve in gathering evidence, interviewing witnesses, and ensuring a fair and transparent process. If the committee finds a student or group of students guilty of ragging, it recommends appropriate disciplinary actions. Depending upon the severity of the incident, the actions may include,

- A formal verbal warning may be issued to the individuals involved, emphasizing the seriousness of the matter and advising them to cease such behavior immediately.
- In cases of repeated or more serious incidents, a written warning may be issued. This warning typically outlines the consequences of further involvement in ragging activities.
- Perpetrators may be required to attend counseling sessions to address the underlying causes of their behavior and to encourage empathy for the victims.
- Perpetrators might be assigned community service tasks within the institution or local community as a means of making amends and contributing positively.
- Imposing fines on the individuals involved in ragging can serve as a deterrent. The funds collected may be used for anti-ragging awareness programs or support services.
- In more severe cases, temporary suspension from the institution may be implemented. During this period, the individuals are not allowed to attend classes or participate in academic activities.
- Expulsion from the institution is a serious consequence and may be applied for extreme cases or for repeat offenders who have not responded to previous disciplinary measures.
- The privilege of staying in the institution's hostel may be revoked as a disciplinary measure, requiring the individuals to find off-campus accommodation.
