Overview

Literature does not just involve what is written in books and what professors say in class. Literature is embodied and multidimensional. We learn best by doing and Literature core shows us that literature is alive and that we are part of it.

Reading Literary sources, writing papers, and listening to lectures remain at the center of the literary core. Now a student learning continues after they step outside the classroom door. Throughout the academic year, students take part in a wide variety of cultural activities and events.

By sharing such ‘fieldwork’ experiences together, students and faculty will add new dimensional and depth to Literary understanding.
