Policies

- Enrich the curriculum by incorporating emerging trends and technologies to meet global needs.
- Promote skill development among students to align with industry requirements and national development.
- Instill a sense of social responsibility among students by encouraging their involvement in extension and outreach activities for the betterment of the local community.
- Enhance the knowledge of faculty and students by organizing training programs, workshops, and courses in various areas of technological advancement.
- Impart values among students and faculty through awareness programs.
- Systematically evaluate the effectiveness of instruction, evaluation, and learning and take corrective measures as needed.

Practices

- IQAC organizes workshops, seminars, and guest lectures on a wide range of topics for both students and faculty to foster research and quality initiatives.
- Disseminate information on various quality parameters to all stakeholders.
- Encourage faculty and students to publish research papers in recognized journals and motivate faculty members to publish books related to their area of expertise.
- Promote student and faculty participation in various extension activities to cultivate a sense of social responsibility.

Outcomes

- IQAC organized seminars, workshops, orientation programs, and conferences for both faculty members and students throughout the academic year.
- Faculty and student publications had a significant increase due to continuous motivation and guidance.
- Undergraduate students were inspired to engage in projects and internships.
- Both students and faculty members actively participated in various extension activities aimed at enhancing neighbouring communities
